

Results from the Global Food Safety Training Survey

Insights from Dairy Companies

The Dairy Industry Is Committed to Food Safety

76%

believe they have a clear vision for improving food safety

80%

believe they provide the food safety training needed to drive correct behaviors

56%

believe they are an industry leader in food safety standards

There is Always Room for Improvement

69%

say they still have employees not following their food safety program on the floor

39%

Only measure employee performance on the floor

23%

do not have a quiz/exam during training to verify comprehension

Dairy's Top 3 Food Safety Challenges

69%

cite "scheduling time for training" as a major challenge

45%

say "verifying effective training" is a big hurdle

28%

report "organizing refresher training" is challenging

Food Safety Training Best Practices

Use shorter training & incorporate "active learning"

Drive consistent, correct application with on-the-floor observation tools

Leverage software to identify training gaps & simplify recordkeeping

Reinforce classroom training with continuous knowledge boosts

Stronger Food Safety Equals Greater Productivity

78%

say their company would be more productive if employees consistently adhered to food safety programs

A strong food safety culture takes a commitment from leaders, managers, and employees to thrive.

Read the full report for more analysis and insights that drive a productive food safety culture.

Download at: bit.ly/GFSTS-2017

